The diagram shows two horizontal bars on the left. The top bar is red and the bottom bar is blue. Each bar has a bracket at its right end, with a line extending from the bracket to a grey rectangular box on the right. The red bar's bracket points to the top grey box, and the blue bar's bracket points to the bottom grey box.

Diagram illustrating a sequence of operations on a stack:

- Initial stack: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5
- Operation 1: push (6)
- Operation 2: pop (6)
- Operation 3: pop (5)
- Operation 4: pop (4)
- Operation 5: pop (3)
- Operation 6: pop (2)
- Operation 7: pop (1)

The diagram shows a sequence of four horizontal bars. The first bar is red, the second is blue, the third is red, and the fourth is red. The second bar is connected to a gray bar on the right.

The diagram illustrates the relationship between the number of nodes (n) and the number of edges (m) in a graph. It is divided into two parts:

- Top part: A graph with 4 nodes (represented by blue squares) and 3 edges (represented by blue lines). The number of edges is less than the number of nodes ($m < n$).
- Bottom part: A graph with 4 nodes (represented by blue squares) and 4 edges (represented by blue lines). The number of edges is equal to the number of nodes ($m = n$).
